

台大醫學院
National Taiwan University
College of Medicine

Forecasting Health Behaviors in a Turbulent World: Current Insights and Future Directions

Meet with Prof. Wan-chin Kuo (郭宛琴)

Dr. Kuo is an assistant professor from University of Wisconsin-Madison, School of Nursing. Her research leverages social and behavioral data from population-based longitudinal studies to explore how social determinants of health and individual behaviors contribute to disparities in cardiometabolic outcomes. She specializes in systematic reviews, meta-analyses, health instrument development and validation, quasi-experimental research designs, and intervention research.

Tuesday

JUL 16

10:30AM-11:30AM

NTUCM
醫學院講堂 202

Hosted by:

- Cheryl Chia-Hui Chen, DNSc, RN (陳佳慧主任)
Professor, School of Nursing
Director, Department of Nursing

